"...think Alabama Shakes with a Scottish soul." - The List

Glaswegian quintet The Nickajack Men have returned with their captivating new single Can't Take It Anymore, due to be released on 29th September 2017 via NJM Recordings.

A reflective yet uptempo track, Can't Take It Anymore flows with delicate, folk-inspired melodies that soon build to a raw, emotion-strewn climax. Filled with the gritty, soulful vocals of frontman Lewis White, it's an anthemic slice of Americana-tinged alt-rock. Of the track, the band explain: "It's a song about struggling to deal with a lot of issues going on. Being stuck feeling like you have no real direction in what you're actually doing day to day. It's good to have an outlet like music where we can put our depressing thoughts across in a weird semi-happy sounding song."

Having formed in 2014, the quartet have been building their name on the Scottish live circuit for the past few years. A sold out show at King Tuts was followed by the 'Best Newcomers' 2015, 'Best Single' and 'Best Alternative/Indie Band' 2016 at the Alternative Music in Falkirk Awards. They have also received support from the likes of Team Rock, Songwriting Magazine and Americana UK and are looking forward to supporting The View on their upcoming tour.

Can't Take It Anymore, the new single from The Nickajack Men, is out 29th September 2017 via NJM Recordings.
